This course expands students’ knowledge of American literature and culture from the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. While many important figures of “high modernism” were Americans living abroad, this course primarily focuses on the literary developments within the American landscape itself. Following W. E. B. Du Bois’s famous prediction that the problem of the 20th Century would be the “color-line,” our readings pose challenging questions concerning difference and belonging. We will pay close attention to how individuals can be included and excluded in a national literature, and we will examine how American social realities are represented and contested using new aesthetic strategies. Ralph Ellison’s Invisible Man, with its complex staging of these course themes, will serve as our primary case study. Across the term students will address the following questions: How does the United States produce a distinctive mythology of the individual? How does literature support or refute the so-called American dream, especially in times of crisis? And finally, how do modernist aesthetics and world historical events find unique expression in the American literary tradition?

Core Texts
Willa Cather, My Ántonia (9780140187649)
F. Scott Fitzgerald, The Great Gatsby (0743273567)
Arthur Miller, Death of a Salesman (0140481346)
Ralph Ellison, Invisible Man (0679732764)
Course Reader (available in B1 of HSS)

Course Assessment:
Preparation, Participation, and Presentations 15%
Character Analysis Essay 10%
Comparative Analysis Essay 25%
Examination 50%

Prospective Itinerary

Week 1 – What is an American?
January 16 – The Declaration of Independence; Douglass, “What to the Slave Is the Fourth of July?” Citizen Kane excerpt (in class)

Week 2 – The Problem of the Individual
January 23 – Melville, “Bartleby, the Scrivener;” Whitman and Dickinson, selected poetry
Week 3 – “The Problem of the Twentieth Century”

Week 4 – Post-War Nostalgia and the West as Prospect
February 6 – Cather, My Ántonia (3-191); Thomas Edison Studio films (in class)

Week 5 – Parallel Tracks and Locomotion
February 13 – Cather, My Ántonia (193-278); Fitzgerald, The Great Gatsby (1-38)

Week 6 – American Dreams
February 20 – Fitzgerald, The Great Gatsby (39-180)

Week 7 – Outlaws and Domestic Concerns
February 27 – Glaspell, Trifles; The Great Train Robbery, dir. Porter. Character Analysis Essay due (~750 words)

Recess

Week 8 – Coming of Age
March 12 – Ellison, Invisible Man (Education: 3-97)

Week 9 – Moving to the City
March 19 – Ellison, Invisible Man (The City: 28-295); McKay and Hughes, selected poetry

Week 10 – Moving Images
March 26 – Stein, selected writings; The Cameraman, dir. Keaton (online); Okubo, selections from Citizen 13660

Week 11 – American Tragedy and Alternative Endings
April 2 – Ellison, Invisible Man (The Brotherhood and Invisibility: 296-581)

Week 11 – The Personal, the Public, the Political
April 9 – Citizen Kane, dir. Welles
Comparative Analysis Essay Due (~1500 words)

Week 12 – The Ends of the Dream
April 16 – Miller, Death of a Salesman

Final Exam: TBC