HH4021: Public & Applied History

Please note this is last year’s syllabus and aside from dates and assessments is only offered as a guide to the content of January’s course. This year’s guests and project will be confirmed in the new year. Please also read the ‘note on attendance’ as, because of the range of professional guest speakers who volunteer their time, any absence from class is looked upon extremely dimly and will come with substantial marks penalties.

Dr Scott Anthony

Experimental, problem-focused and socially useful, HH4021 offers a unique opportunity to reach out from beyond the walls of the NTU classroom. It is a course that will ground you in both the various methodological practices, and professional contexts, of Public History.

It begins by thinking about the ways in which our understandings of the past, and the uses it is put to, are shaped by the present. We move on to address how the past is encountered imaginatively, through objects and in the media.

During the second half of the course we move away from the consumption of public history and begin to focus on its production. This year you will be tasked by the National Heritage Board to produce some work for them – this will require you to pull together a range of non-textual sources to produce a compelling, intellectually robust but widely appealing set of public histories.

HH4021 will push you to find ways of applying historical methodologies to non-academic contexts, to evaluate the way in which these methodologies are applied and to reflect on the ethical, methodological and intellectual consequences of making historical knowledge ‘useable’.

Over the semester we have a range of visits, workshops and guest speakers. To get the most out of the course you'll need to participate fully in these.

14 January – Week 1
Introduction

21 January – Week 2 (No class Hari Raya Haji)

28 January – Week 3
The meaning of the past in the present
Reading: Extracts from D. Lowenthal The Past is a Foreign Country & others

4 February – Week 4
Museums and their publics
Reading: Extracts from J. Barrett Museums and the Public Sphere & others

11 February – Week 5 (at National Gallery of Singapore)
Understanding exhibitions
Reading: Extracts from J. Thompson The Manual of Curatorship

18 February – Week 6 (with Qinyi Lim)
Workshop: Exhibition development
Reading: Extracts from K. Moore Museums and Popular Culture

25 February – Week 7 (with Eva Wong Nava)
Workshop: Imaginative history
Reading: TBC

Recess

10 March – Week 8
Workshop: History and journalism
Reading: Extracts from P. Ramos Pinto and B. Taithe (Eds.) The Impact of History? & others

17 March – Week 9
Workshop: individual portfolios
Reading: TBC

24 March – Week 10 (with Charmaine Chua)
NHB briefing & Ethnography workshop
Reading: M. Desmond, ‘Relational Ethnography’ & others

31 March – Week 11
Project field work: plus individual group consultations

7 April – Week 12
Project field work: group presentations

14 April – Week 13
Project field work: plus individual group consultations

//Assessments
1) Review essay set on 11 Feb due 1pm on 10 March (15%)

2) Individual portfolio set circa week 7/8, due 1pm on 14 April (30%)
(Full details will be given nearer the time, but the basis of the portfolio is the tasks we do in class weeks 6,7 and 8.)

3) Group portfolio set circa week 8/9, due 25 April @ 5pm (30%)
(Full details be given on the briefing on 17 October)

4) Reflective essay set on 14 April due 1 May @ 5pm (25%)

//A note on attendance
You are expected to attend every class and keep up with the readings and between class tasks. This is especially important bearing in mind the nature of a Public History course and its assessments. Please notify me if you are unable to attend a session. Attendance at guest workshops is mandatory and failure to attend will result in a marks deduction at the end of the semester.